

What Happens After a Report

Mini Training Module– SUMMARY

“What Happens After a Report” reviews non-crisis or non-emergency situations and focuses on student Administrative processes.

Once report is submitted...

There is an information review– the information submitted is reviewed and often the Title IX Coordinator will reach out to the Complainant to provide rights, resources, supportive measures, and Policy information. The Complainant will decide next steps. There are cases in which a Complainant is not identified and the Title IX Coordinator will access the information and take appropriate action if possible.

The vast majority of the time, the Complainant will determine how the case proceeds. The Title IX Office is respectful of the wishes of the Complainant.

Often Complainants simply choose to be connected to support services.

If a Complainant signs a formal complaint...

There will be an investigation and subsequent due process.

If Police receive a report, typically Police will...

- 1) Determine emergency response
- 2) Determine jurisdiction
- 3) Take a report & evaluate next steps
- 4) Provide Victim Support packet
- 5) Investigate (If applicable)
- 6) Refer legal case to District Attorney’s office

Police are not mandatory reporters, so if a complainant wants to take formal action, they need to file a formal complaint with the Title IX office
